Look What We're Studying...

Hello Parents,

These last few weeks have been super busy here in preschool! We've entered the busiest month..DECEMBER! We have some very fun activities planned out. Last week our theme was the Gingerbread man. We created our own version of gingerbread man/girl, that was fun! Students also got to use the Gingerbread words I provided and made up their own story. This week's theme: WINTER/SNOWMAN

We're getting ready for our Nativity skit and all the students had the chance to paint their character! Watch out for an email next week for the video.

SCIENCE

As I'm sure you have all heard, we continue to talk about the phases of the moon.

We also have learned how animals build shelters for the winter and will continue to learn about seasonal changes in habitats.

This week we will experiment with sound, focusing on bells for Christmas.

Happy Advent! It is our joy to celebrate the Solemnity of the Immaculate Conception, patroness of our school and the patroness of the United States of America! We have been discussing Advent, working on Jesse Tree ornaments and reading the related story though in our children's Bible. We have made ornaments related to Creation, Adam and Eve, and Noah and the Ark. Now we will look at the Patriarchs from Abraham and Sarah to Jesse and King David as we move toward the coming of the Messiah.

Last Sunday was the Feast of Saint Nicholas, which has lots of opportunities for fun family traditions. If you are interested adding some new traditions to your family, check out Saint Nicholas Center.org and Catholic Icing for fun ideas. It's never too late to celebrate a Saint!
